Civil Courts are debarred from entertaining suits for pensions. But this is not such a case. It refers only to the utilisation of the money; and I think that the best course as I have already noted, is to submit to the jurisdiction of the Courts. Either Lady Kr. or Govt (by intervening) may take the objn in the Court.

14) Of Course Govt has the power to decline to be bound by the injunction, and the only consequence will be that they may render themselves liable to a suit. But as all valid objns may be advanced in a Court, it would be more decorous to do so.
